VOLUME II No. 23

Council rejects old home as library

Efforts to build a new library in Minden took another sharp turn Wednesday evening as members of the Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council rejected the proposal to purchase the Richard Kirkwood home on North Water Street for the facility.

The rejection came on the heels of a presentation by Ruth Gorrie, head of the planning committee for the new facility. Her presentation was identical to one made by Judy Phillips to the planning committee several weeks ago. It suggested that the Kirkwood home would make an ideal site for the library because the building had historical and architectural merit. Foremost in the presentation was the fact that purchasing the home would be less expensive than building a completely new building.

The plan had received tentative approval from the council when the library-cultural centre committee had met several weeks ago, and first heard the proposal from Phillips. The council was meeting in an adjoining room that evening and was called in and given a brief summary of the proposal. There appeared to be no objections from the councillors at that time, and members of the committee, all who appeared to endorse the proposal as well, started procedures aimed at acquiring the house for a library, art gallery and museum.

Wednesday evening that unanimous support started to fade. Ruth Gorrie had noted in her presentation that the home and property had been appraised at $65,000 to $68,000 if it is to be used as a cultural centre. This is below the $80,000 sought by the present owners. Gorrie noted that the appraisal price did not include the goodwill, which would be included for anyone purchasing the business. Councillor Lyle McKnight questioned whether the present owners would contribute $5000, as indicated when the proposal was first made, if the price was lower than their asking price. Gorrie said she did not know.

Councillor Len Lonsberry, who serves as council's representative on the library board and building committee, told the meeting that all 13 members of the committee favour the Kirkwood home location for an art gallery and museum, but only eight of the 13 agreed to the inclusion of library in the building as well.

"I don't feel it is suitable for a library," Lonsberry commented, "There are too many rooms (and wall divisions) on the main floor and a lack of control over access to the upper floor." He also noted that one of the beams in the basement would have to be replaced.

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt said the location was unsuitable for a library. He said the library is needed this year and that any further delays would mean money for the library would not be included in this year's municipal budget due to be struck soon. "We just either build or buy, but let's get on with the job," he commented. He said he was willing to offer just want to support to any effort to establish an art gallery and museum at the North Water Street location, but indicated that municipal funds would not be available for the project.

Councillor Len Lonsberry noted that all the members of the library management board were in agreement that the Kirkwood home would be an unsuitable location for the library. Several members of the committee who were present said the lay-out on the ground floor was unsuitable and unsafe for library patrons. They noted that the existing walls would block the librarian's view of the entire floor area creating potential for theft or vandalism.

Gorrie responded by saying she wished these people had spoken up earlier, when the Kirkwood house was first being considered.

Dave Johnson, a representative of the consulting firm which had carried out the library feasibility study earlier this year noted that if the group wished to take advantage of Wintario funds, the library must include some aspects of a cultural centre as well. He pointed out that the group would have to move quickly as Wintario funding for capital projects of this nature ended almost a year ago and a special approach would have to be made to the Minister of Culture and Recreation if the facility was to receive the necessary funding.

Johnson was asked by Councillor Stu Brandon if he would recommend the use of the Kirkwood home for the three functions, library, art gallery and museum. After outlining how the property could accommodate each facility, Johnson pointed out that it was impossible to compare the architectural and aesthetic appeal of the Kirkwood home with the ease of operation that could be built into a new building. He said that if there was an expansion in any one of the three areas, one function would have to be removed to a new location. "There is no way the Kirkwood home would be a perfect building for a library," he concluded.

Four years

Throughout the four year history of the library planning committee there have been reports of contention between those favouring a library, art gallery or museum. This latest change of direction is likely to aggravate that split. Several members of the committee, including the spokesman Ruth Gorrie indicated their dissatisfaction with the turn of events.

Reeve Nesbitt attempted to hold the group together as the meeting ended Wednesday evening. He told the spokesman not to be disappointed. "We must work together to get this project completed," he commented.

However, Gorrie told the councillors she was disappointed that the committee appeared to be splitting into the three factions again. She indicated there had been a lack of communications and co-operation between the council and the committee, saying the council had not kept the committee informed on some of its activities in relation to the library project.

She commented that she had heard through a third party that the council was considering another location for the library building. "It is disappointing to have to hear these things through another person when I have worked so long on this," she commented.

Nesbitt replied that the council was, "considering all options. We have not, as a council, made any offers," he concluded.

The Jack Jackson rink captured top honours in the Minden Curling Club's Straw and Stone bonspiel. The competition is the last major curling event of the season. The members of the championship team accept the trophy from Brian Crawford, centre, a sales representative for Hiram Walker. The foursome includes, from the left, Jean Jackson lead, Jack Jackson skip, Brian Crawford, Etta McCann vice, and Bob McCann second. A complete report on the tournament can be found on page 8.

County budget up $50,000

The 1980 Haliburton County budget was struck Wednesday morning and taxpayers are being asked to ante up over $50,000 more this year to help keep the county government running smoothly.

The total budget for the county during this year has been set at $744,711. This compares with $693,837 spent by the county during 1979.

While there were increases in almost all departments, the roads budget, which takes the largest portion of the county's annual levy, led the way with a $27,000 increase over 1979. The county road system will absorb $388,000 of the total budget, a little more than one half of the funds raised by the county.

Other areas noting significant increases were planning and development which jumps from $42,000 spent in 1979 to $49,500 this year. Much of the $7000 increase can be traced to the Haliburton County Economic Development Commission which will receive $10,000 this year compared to the $4,000 allotted in 1979. The grant to the Chamber of Commerce has also been increased by $2,000 to $15,000.

Increases were also noted in the general government sector, up $7,000 to $81,500; social and family services up $3,000 to $142,000; recreational and cultural services up $3,000 to $45,700; and an increase of $2,000 in health services for a budget of $33,400.

The county itself does not have the power to levy taxes to obtain the necessary funds to operate, but must rely on the individual townships to share the burden of the operation. The funds needed are apportioned to the municipalities through a complicated formula which takes into account the assessment within each township, the size of the resource equalization grants from the provincial government and a number of other factors.

The following per centages of the county budget and the actual amounts will be paid by each of the 10 municipal areas within the county: Dysart et al 33.71% or $223,159; Anson, Hindon and Minden 18.2% or $121,674; Stanhope 10.83% or $72,403; Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone 8.06% or $53,884; Lutterworth 7.25% or $48,469;

Glamorgan 6.13% or $40,981; Cardiff 5.86% or $38,842; Monmouth 4.09% or $27,343; Snowdon 3.85% or $25,471; and Bicroft Improvement District 2.02% or $13,504.

Stresses unemployment

Dysart et al Reeve Murray Fearry commented following the presentation of the budget that he was very concerned about unemployment in the county. "The problems created by unemployment must be taken very seriously," he stated, "It is the most important subject to come before the county council since I have taken office." The Dysart reeve said that immediate action was needed if the problem was to be

FROM THE CHAMBER

By Bob Stinson

After a gruelling ten days at the Toronto Show we have just a week to put things in order before going on holidays. This column, therefore, will once again be missing from its regular spot for the next few weeks.

The Sportsmen Show was again considered successful although attendance was slightly down from previous years. Over 4,000 of our new directories were distributed to interested visitors along with about 700 Building Trades Directories to families who said they owned or were buying property in the county.

The participation of the Haliburton Guild of Fine Arts provided our booth with a "touch of class" that was admired by many and they were successful in selling over $400 worth of tickets on the magnificent "Rail's End Quilt" that was on display.

There are always a large number of helping hands that we rely on to provide a good display and we would like to thank all those that participated and helped. In particular a big thanks goes to Went Hogg (Went's Marina) for once again transporting our display booth down and back.

Wild Water Preserve

Congratulations are certainly in order for Roger Parsons who has been the prime moving force behind the Minden Wild Water Park. It was envisaged by Roger and his associates over two years ago and he has put a tremendous amount of volunteer time and effort into it to bring it to the present point. More than once the project was considered beyond hope by many of its other supporters but Roger persisted - and now his dreams are being realized.

The plans have met some resistance from cottagers and residents until they fully understood what was happening. The esthetics of the area will be improved, existing parking problems will be solved, and Minden will be put on the map as having the best white-water facility of its kind on this continent. The organizers are bending over backwards to work with us, and there is no doubt that businesses in the area will benefit. It's about time we showed them our support.

Seminar/meeting April 9

On April 9 at the PineStone Inn two very important events are taking place. Why not make a day of it and take in both of them.

From 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. the F.B.D.B. is hosting a seminar on Marketing which will assist business people in assessing their market, creating a plan to market to it and implementing a good advertising and promotion effort. It is an area where almost all of us could certainly use some help and we urge you to attend. Cost is only $30.00 (including lunch) and you may register by contacting the F.B.D.B. office in Peterborough at 1-748-3241.

After supper and beginning at 7:30 p.m. the Chamber will host an open meeting at the same location, featuring Mr. Mike Filey of Canada Wonderland. He will provide details complete with films of the 108 Million Dollar "Disneyland of the North" now under construction at Maple. If you think Maple is too far away to have an impact consider for a moment how every tourist region in the entire state of Florida has related to the establishment of Disneyland there. It certainly will have an impact - how much depends on how we go about preparing for it.

There is no admission charge to this meeting. We noted last week that a fashion show at the PineStone drew a packed house with cars parked all the way out to the highway. It will be interesting to see if a meeting as important as this can attract as many interested business people.

Post cards

Last year the Chamber embarked on a program to obtain a greater variety of good local scenes in post cards for local businesses. The plan, unfortunately, was implemented too late for delivery of cards last summer but this year we are ready. At least ten local scenes will be available and will be sold in quantities of 200 of each scene. While these cards are being printed we can also provide any member who wishes to have their own specific cards printed in a quantity of 2,500 - an opportunity to do so at a very reasonable cost.

Details of this are now being sent to all members in a newsletter. Watch for it.

Coming events

April 5 - Wilberforce host their annual "Maple Syrup Festival" with demonstrations at the sugar shack in the park adjacent to Lloyd Watson Memorial centre. Pancakes and sausages will be served from 9 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. and syrup and candy will be on sale. Also included is a flea market and a festival dance on Saturday evening featuring Anna Marie and the Goodtimers.

April 9 - F.B.D.B. Seminar and Canada Wonderland meeting at the PineStone Inn as detailed above. Don't miss this one!

Couple sponsor Vietnamese youth

Haliburton County acquired a new resident Thursday.

He is 13 year old Khoan Van Pham, a refugee from the war-torn country of Vietnam. He has become a part of the Fred Loosemore and Wendy Grater family at Camp Kandalore.

Fred and Wendy offered to sponsor the young man after they had heard that many unaccompanied minors were escaping Vietnam, only to become stuck in refugee camps in Malaysia and other southeast Asian countries. Many of the sponsoring groups in Canada and elsewhere in the world agreed to take families or individual adults, but they were unaware of the plight of the children, between 10 and 18 years of age who had left Vietnam without their parents.

Gradually, however, word spread that many of these unaccompanied minors were being left to languish in the camps because groups were selecting family units to sponsor. So a separate organization, interested mainly in helping the unaccompanied minors, was created. Reverend David Barker of Minden formed a group locally for the sponsorship of the minors and Khoan is the first to arrive.

Reverend Barker and his wife have offered to sponsor two minors, but they have not yet heard whether their request can be filled.

The sponsorship of the minors differs somewhat from the program under which the family units are brought to Canada. While the backing of a number of Canadian families is required, generally the minor will come to live in one household. The adults assume a role as guardians for the youth until he turns 18 years of age at which time the youth may strike out on his own. There is no legal family relationship between the sponsoring family and the youth, after he reaches 18 years of age, as there is in cases of adoption.

As his sponsors, the family must provide the necessities for the refugee child and assist with his education and assimilation into Canada.

Fred and Wendy met Khoan for the first time Thursday at the Toronto International Airport. He had arrived there from the refugee staging area in Edmonton. A member of the refugee family already being sponsored by the Minden-Coboconk group, Khai Phan, accompanied the couple to the airport to greet the youth.

Khoan Pham, a recent arrival from Vietnam, helps Fred Loosemore and Wendy Grater gather sap from maple trees three days after arriving in Haliburton County. The 13 year old youth will be living with the couple at Camp Kandalore.

The couple describe the meeting as an exciting experience. They had written to Khoan in Edmonton and sent him their photographs so when the sponsors were led into the arrivals hall to meet their children, the youths could immediately identify who their sponsor was.

Khoan left Vietnam in September of last year. His parents had only enough money to purchase his passage from the country and they have remained behind. He stayed in a refugee camp in Malaysia until he was matched with his sponsoring family.

Although the youth has only been in Haliburton for a few days, he has quickly been integrated into the local activities. On Saturday he attended the maple syrup and information day at the Frost Centre and has been helping with the collection of sap at the Camp Kandalore. It is expected that in a few weeks he will start attending school, but for now the emphasis is on learning English and discovering things Canadian.

Classrooms to be tested for asbestos fibers

The Haliburton County Board of Education has agreed to test the air in county schools to determine if it is being contaminated by asbestos fibers or other "unhealthy substance."

The announcement of the testing program was made in a letter sent to Sonya Holliday-Rhodes of Minden. As head of the Haliburton County Anti-Pollution Committee, she had written to the board asking if the schools had been inspected to determine if sources of asbestos were present.

A number of classrooms in schools in the Toronto and Hamilton areas have had to be closed recently because asbestos fibers, breaking away from fire proofing material, had been found floating in the air. The fibers can cause serious lung damage if enough of the material is inhaled.

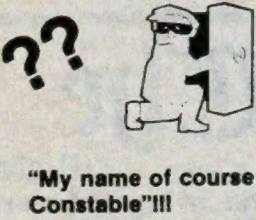

The director of education for the school board, Douglas Hodgson, commented that the board has been examining the schools for the past few years to determine if there is any potential health hazard.

"We don't think we have a problem," he commented Tuesday, "but we just want to make sure we don't."

The air tester is being brought into the county by the local Health Unit. The device will sample the air in all rooms in the schools throughout the county to determine if there is a dangerous level of asbestos present.

The letter to the president of the Anti-Pollution Committee notes that the board of education was advised by the Ontario government in September of last year to inspect all buildings for obvious sources of asbestos pollution. The letter noted that there may be difficulties in identifying all sources of the substance, because it is incorporated in floor tile and other material.

The director of the board noted however that the testing

Councils protest plan for Saturday closing

Saturday closing of post offices in the Highlands has received a harsh welcome from at least two elected bodies in the county.

The county council, meeting Wednesday morning (March 26) and Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council, which met that evening, both endorsed resolutions urging the federal government not to implement Saturday closing of the facilities.

The councils had been informed of the possibility of the change in the post office schedule through a letter sent by the Canadian Postmasters and Assistants Association (CPAA). The letter was signed by Lloyd Johnson, assistant postmaster at the Minden office.

The letter pointed out that the federal government plans to close all postal services in small communities across Canada. "This plan is not only detrimental to the employees, but also to the economic welfare of the town, region and county," the letter stated. The association, which represents postmasters and their assistants in smaller offices across the county, urged the council to protest the plan and communicate their dissatisfaction to their MPs and MPPs. "You can help prevent a serious mistake," the letter concluded.

The CPAA letter gave a number of reasons for their objections to the plan. It noted that Saturday closings could mean the loss of jobs at the post office and pointed out that this income was important to the local economy. But it was also noted that the local post office generates traffic in the downtown area. "Smaller centres will lose customers to the larger business communities," the letter stated.

The CPAA claimed that the post office provides the only link between small communities and the federal government, noting that in larger centres federal agencies often have offices which are available to local people. It was also noted that individuals whose work schedule or location of work does not permit them to take advantage of weekly postal service, must rely on the Saturday opening.

The letter said that closing the small local post offices on Saturday would, "do very little to strengthen the economy of the county."

The resolution passed by the county council noted the importance of the facility to the many seasonal residents in the area.

The Minden post office

now provides full counter service from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturdays. The lock box lobby remains open to 7:30 p.m.

The CPAA has also expressed concern that the federal government may be planning to have smaller post offices close during the noon hour. Local spokesman Lloyd Johnson said while this would not affect Minden and Haliburton service, in centres such as Kinmount, where only one person handles the duties in the post office, the plan could be implemented.

At the moment, at single employee post office operations, a relief employee handles the duties during the noon hour while the regular employee is off for lunch.

Post office operations which are combined with businesses in centres like Cardiff or Wilberforce may close during the noon hour now, the spokesman noted.

Budget

solved.

Fearry is also chairman of the county's budget committee.

Stanhope Deputy Reeve Elgin Stouffer said the county could be much richer and self-supporting if a higher grade of trees were grown here. He said that growing higher quality trees offered a permanent solution to the poor economy of the area.

"Most of the wood in our forests is being sold for nothing more than firewood," Stouffer commented. He said the forests of Haliburton bring $20 million per year into the county. "If our forests were to be upgraded, that figure may climb to $100 million," Stouffer told the meeting.

Library in limbo

We couldn't help but feel a certain twinge of disappointment Wednesday evening when we learned that efforts to obtain a new library in Minden have been sidetracked once again. We suspect the same disappointment and frustration is being shared by many in the community.

Our feelings are based on a number of factors, many of which have been related here before.

We believe the majority of people in this community realize the need for and want a new library. Even those who never use the facility are aware of the value of a library to a growing community. These people are willing to contribute, both through their taxes and in personal donations, to see a new library established.

However, the same people are becoming frustrated and disillusioned by the lack of direction demonstrated by the committee selected to make the library a reality. As well-meaning as we know their efforts are, the group appears to take one step forward and two to the rear. It is difficult for the citizens who are on the sidelines watching all this bewildering activity to become enthusiastic about any plan proposed by the group. It seems as quickly as one is put forward, and interest starts to grow and solidify, the entire plan is scrapped and the group heads off in another direction.

Some of these changes in plan have been the result of unavoidable problems, such as the unstable ground conditions at the first site. Others may be due to poor communications between the committee and township council. Wherever the problems lie, it is certain each time the library plan undergoes a major shift that some members of the community withdraw their support, not so much because they do not want a new library in the community, but simply because it is hard to remain enthusiastic about something when its form, shape and location keeps changing.

Minden needs a new library. It does not need, in the same pressing manner, an art gallery or museum. These latter two projects, though worthwhile and admirable undertakings, have only added to the confusion surrounding the primary task of the committee, the building of a new library. They should not be allowed to further muddy the waters.

If a library must be built without a museum or art gallery, so be it. But let's get on with the task so the support of the community will not be lost altogether.

A vital service

Postal service, like electricity or running water, is something we all take for granted. Its value is never fully realized until it is no longer there.

The suggestion from the Canadian Postmasters and Assistants Association that the federal government is contemplating closing the Minden and Haliburton post offices deserves immediate and serious attention.

Saturday postal service, those services which are provided over the counter and are available nowhere else in the community, is vital to communities the size of Minden or Haliburton.

Many of our residents find it difficult or impossible to get to the post office during the week. The Saturday morning opening provides them with their only opportunity to transact business.

In our local communities, the post office also provides an important service to seasonal residents. The post office may not be the only reason these people come into town Saturday morning, but it provides one more enticement to bring them into the core area of the community. The post office is an important traffic builder for the downtown core.

There is also the potential for the loss of jobs at the post office if the facility is closed Saturday morning. While the loss of a few jobs may not be felt in larger communities, they are important in Minden and Haliburton.

County council and Minden council were swift in their response to the possibility of the Saturday closing. We urge other municipal councils, business associations, groups and individuals in the county to let the federal government know that the Saturday morning postal service is vital to our communities.

REPORT FROM QUEEN'S PARK

By John Eakins, M.P.P.

Finally the Ontario Cabinet has approved measures forcing provincial agencies to justify their existence over a three year period starting in 1982. Last year 36 such agencies were disbanded or amalgamated with others because they were either inactive or judged useless. Some 21 agencies will be reviewed starting in 1982 and the chairman of the review committee anticipates that "a majority of them will disappear". Those under review in 1982 will include the Ontario Economic Council, the Status of Women Council, the Council on Special Education and the Advisory Committee on Confederation.

Other developments

The Minister of Correctional Services has announced that starting this summer, inmates will be ploughing land, harvesting crops and canning fresh produce - and in some cases raising livestock - at the province's detention and correction centres.

In response to Opposition questions, the Premier has indicated that he will not commit the province to independent action on mortgage interest rates.

Ontario's superintendent of insurance has said he will probe a life insurance company's demands that applicants authorize it to gather medical information from any source, even neighbours.

A coalition of social service organizations may urge voters to reject the Davis government at the polls unless major changes are made in Ontario's billion-dollar-a-year program to aid old people. A coalition spokesman is the author of a report urging the government to implement its stated policy of providing services to the elderly in their own homes rather than in institutions.

The group wanted to present its agenda of reforms to Premier William Davis, but had to settle for a talk with three cabinet ministers in which they extracted a commitment to extend OHIP-funded, chronic home care from its present pilot project status to a province-wide program by 1982.

Letters

Editor:

The people of Port Hope have suffered irreversible losses when the Ganaraska River ran wild through our town on March 21, 1980. The town has been declared a disaster area. The monetary loss to private individuals and small businesses has been estimated at over $5 million dollars. Flood insurance was unavailable, because our 19th century downtown core was built on a flood plain. The loss in terms of human suffering and heritage architecture can never be compensated.

The 10,000 citizens of Port Hope are pulling together to save our downtown, but we need help. We are asking your readers to understand our difficulties and contribute to our disaster relief fund. Every dollar we receive from private sources will be matched by the Ontario Government.

Donations may be sent to The Port Hope Disaster Relief Fund, Box 117, Port Hope, Ontario or at any branch of major banks throughout the country. Tax receipts will be issued for donations.

The message is hope

This weekend marks the annual Christian celebration of renewal, Easter. Reverend G.V. Leahy, of Our Lady of Fatima Roman Catholic Church in Minden prepared the following message for this important festival. He points out that despite the cynicism of today's world, there is still hope for those who find strength in Christian faith.

Andrew Greeley has been described as a man who has never had an unpublished thought. He has also been called his own Book of the Month Club.

In his book, The Jesus Myth, he has written: "The image of Jesus that many of us acquired in our early training frequently seems to reduce him to being a puppet. There was a scenario that the heavenly Father had designed. The role of Jesus had been written for him. He went onto the stage, played his part knowing exactly how it would all end, and departed to allow the rest of the drama to continue. In such a view of things there was little room in the life of Jesus for hope. He knew what was going to happen to him, he knew how the act would end and how the drama would continue. Hope was no more pertinent an orientation for him than uncertainty of outcome would be for an actor in a play."

What is hope? It is the conviction expressed in the opening chapter of Genesis that reality is benign. That is what the author was getting at by noting God's judgement about the results of each of the six days of creative activity: "God saw that it was good." And when creation is finished on the sixth day, just in case some particularly unperceptive reader still had not seen the point, the author provides a picture of God taking a final appraising look at the whole of creation and giving his seal of approval: "God saw all he had made and indeed it was very good."

That is what hope is. It is the assurance that the universe is out to do you good and therefore it's all right to do good yourself. And Jesus is a man of hope. And the message of Easter is a message of hope. But let me say immediately, lest anyone conclude that this hope is the staple of utopians and day-dreamers, that I have in mind a hope which is quite at home with suffering and failure.

After all, Jesus the man of hope, certainly experienced his share of suffering and failure. He had to resist the efforts of people to pigeon-hole him, to make him conform to categories that did not suit him.

The crowds tried to turn him into a wonder-worker: "I tell you most solemnly, you are not looking for me because you have understood the signs but because you had all the bread you wanted to eat." (Jn. 6:26)

His enemies and even his friends wanted him to be a political revolutionary. It seems that one of the reasons Judas betrayed Jesus to the authorities was that he was getting impatient with Jesus' delays - as he thought - in starting an uprising against the Romans and felt that his actions might "get the ball rolling", so to speak. Even on the very day of Jesus' ascension, Luke tells us that the apostles were still expecting Jesus to begin a revolution. "They asked him: 'Lord, has the time come? Are you going to restore the kingdom to Israel?' " Imagine how you would feel if you devoted three years of your life to the training of a group of followers only to discover at the end of that time that they still had no idea what you were talking about.

He knew about suffering too. "The son of man has nowhere to lay his head." (Mt. 8:20) He was repeatedly harassed by religious authorities. And his passion and death need only be mentioned.

Still he remained a man of hope, a hope which could live with suffering and failure, indeed a hope which could find suffering and failure useful and valuable. Jesus was not a dreamer or an utopian. He was a realist who believed that creation was good and that the God who made it good enough was able to use even failure and suffering to bring about good.

What the evangelists are telling us when they speak about the resurrection is that Jesus' hope was justified. He was right to continue to trust in the goodness of God and of the reality that God has made, even in the face of suffering and failure.

The resurrection tells us that reality is benign. Certainly suffering and failure are part of reality but they are not the only part of even the most important part. Suffering and failure, along with the more pleasant aspects of Jesus' life all had their usefulness in bringing Jesus to the ultimate triumph of his resurrection, the ultimate instance of the graciousness of reality. The resurrection confirms what Genesis hinted at: that as creation is good in its origin, it has goodness as its destiny.

Well and good, but what does all this mean for us?

Our present age is very much concerned with hope. Or perhaps it is more accurate to say we are obsessed by the possibility that hope is a delusion.

Young people sometimes wonder if they ought to have children who may have no future in which to grow up. Acid rain and pollution of the environment offer us the intriguing possibility of converting paradise into a desert. Dwindling energy supplies (and soaring prices) invite the prospect of "freezing in the dark". Political instability suggests the possibility that we may eliminate our problems by eliminating ourselves in a nuclear war. There is much about the present state of things to make us wonder if there are grounds for hope.

And yet people do hope - desperately perhaps - but they do. Current interest in science fiction, the popularity of the work of Teilhard de Chardin, the desire to gain control - in some measure - over the future through astrology, all indicate a desire to believe that despite all our present troubles the human race is moving toward a better future.

But the trouble with these strivings is that they don't seem to have much to do with the individual. To quote Greeley again: "The species, will get better, the lot of the working class will improve, the third world will find abundance. These are exciting and challenging visions particularly when one is young and expecting to see some of these visions come to fruition. But when one is older he is not readily persuaded that these Splendid Days will dawn for him and that hope for the species which does not necessarily improve hope for himself seems rather empty and foul."

There is a rather crucial difference in the hope that Jesus represents. It is not so exclusively concerned with the species at the expense of the individual.

No doubt Jesus did teach that the kingdom of God is not yet here in its fullness. It has not yet reached its consummation. There is still to come the final victory. But Jesus did not say we may have hope only because of what will come to pass in the future. He affirmed that we are to hope and indeed celebrate with joy because what will reach its fullness in the future is already present. The seed is already planted and growing, the yeast is working in the dough, the net has been cast, the treasure and the pearl are there for the finding, the wedding feast is taking place. "The kingdom of God is among you." (Lk. 17:21)

The hope which Jesus preached is not based on the future development of the species or on any action of man or the (sort of) mystical forces inherent in the universe. Jesus said that each one of us could be hopeful for the same reason that he was, because of the free and loving intervention of God. Jesus was hopeful because he had the insight to sense within him the presence of God loving and transforming the world. And he told his followers that they could be hopeful for the same reason. "Whosoever believes in me will perform the same works as I do myself, he will perform even greater works." (Jn. 14:12)

So failure and suffering were real for Jesus as they are real for the Christian and everyone else. And hope is not based in the belief that a collection of defeats and failures will somehow culminate in victory, but in the promise of the Father that victory is already present even amidst defeat and will finally manifest itself completely. Christianity has often been accused of promoting 'pie in the sky'. Marx called religion (and he would have been thinking primarily of Christianity, the religion he was most familiar with) 'the opiate of the people'. But Marx went on to suggest an even greater slice of pie in the sky by insisting that society will gradually evolve to an ideal state by its own innate drives if only the right conditions are provided.

By contrast the Christian is enough of a realist to understand that man has not been able to make the world a better place by his own efforts and that technology which used to be promoted as the road to the millenium seems rather to be compounding our problems, as well as creating some entirely novel ones that we didn't have before. And so the Christian believes that if goodness is to triumph an external force must intervene. We can't do it alone. And the Christian believes, as Jesus believed, that the external force - God - did and does intervene, for good.

Therefore the Christian does not quit. He does not give up. When others have given up hope because of frustration or defeat or old age or whatever, the Christian continues, like Jesus, to hope because, like Jesus, he trusts in the goodness of his Father.

Therefore the Christian works - continually - to make the world a better place. The Christian continues to strive for the coming of the kingdom. At the same time he knows that his work and his striving, however marvellous, cannot create the kingdom but can only manifest its presence. The Christian knows that the kingdom is God's gift, that it comes through God's power in his own good time. He is content to work as if the coming of the kingdom depended on his efforts and at the same time to realize that it is completely the gift of God.

The Christian like Jesus, does not sit back and wait for God to do everything. Jesus cared. He was committed to the ideals of justice and charity. So is the Christian who knows that somehow or other the power of God works through him to bring about the kingdom and at the same time knows that it is God's power and God's gift and not his own.

So the message of Easter is a message of hope. It is a message that is as necessary today as it ever was because there are at least as many reasons for despair as there ever were. Surely it is obvious that our fundamental view of reality exerts a powerful influence on our capacity to deal with our problems. If someone faces a difficult problem with the feeling that it is really insoluble, that the forces working against success are too great, that even if this one is solved worse ones will develop, he is beaten before he starts. Cynicism, distrust, suspicion and fear are powerful deterrents to success. They are the death of hope.

Jesus preached that there is no reason to be beaten by cynicism, distrust, suspicion and fear because the basic nature of reality and the God who made it is good and loving. And the resurrection is God's ultimate affirmation of the truth of what Jesus preached. I wonder what would become of us and our world if large numbers of people began to act as if Jesus were telling the truth?

College can fill need says co-ordinator

"I feel that the courses being suggested by the Peterborough YWCA for Minden would be redundant". These comments from Barb Bolin, director of continuous learning for Sir Sandford Fleming College in Haliburton, expresses her reaction to the report that the Peterborough YWCA may be considering offering adult education and leisure time courses in the Minden area.

Two representatives of the Peterborough YWCA were in the area several weeks ago to determine if there was enough interest in the courses they were offering. The representatives claim they found an unfilled need in the Minden area and indicated they would be back to determine which courses were in demand.

Bolin said the college has a mandate to provide education programs for Haliburton County and that the school had attempted to respond to the needs of the community. She noted that woodworking and pottery classes were being held in Minden as well as fitness classes. "We have a children's pottery class and have held crafts classes in Minden in the past," she noted.

Bolin said that a day camp program, which has been in operation in Haliburton Village area during the summer months, may be tried in Minden as well.

One of the areas of greatest interest, according to the YWCA representatives, was for a day camp summer program here. They indicated that many mothers indicated they would appreciate some form of organized activity for the youngsters during the summer months.

Bolin noted that any of the courses suggested by the YWCA representatives could be offered by the college and that if instructors could not be found locally to teach the courses, the college was willing to bring in instructors from outside the area if there was enough interest in a particular subject.

She also pointed out that the college already has established its offices and contacts in the county and that it would be much easier for Sir Sandford Fleming College to respond to the needs of the community.

The college's co-ordinator pointed out that the only program that the YWCA could offer that the college couldn't would be those associated with its facilities in Peterborough.

Rounding the clubhouse turn, youngsters strain to the challenge of a skating race held Friday evening at the Dysart arena. The race was part of a fun night which drew a large crowd of spectators and eager participants.

County roads budget defended

Bill Obee, the Haliburton County Engineer, informed the County council March 26, that a 4% increase in funds from 1979 will be necessary to repair Haliburton's roads in 1980.

Obee told the council that "many roads in the county are in bad shape," and that "we can only repair as many roads as we can afford."

Not only are repair and contract costs responsible for the increase, but, according to Obee, "New equipment will be needed for the construction including four pick-up trucks."

"I would like to compliment you on your report," Elgin Stouffer told Obee. "However I feel that you are spending far too much money on permanent employees. If you cut the permanent staff by 50% and had private contractors do that work it would save money."

Stouffer told Obee and the council that, "I can't support the purchase of three or four new pieces of equipment, we should back-off on ownership of equipment."

Minden Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt informed the council that he wasn't siding with anyone, but stated that, "we have had bad experiences in the past with contractors, and money will not necessarily be saved by taking this route."

Obee seemed confident that he was making the right decision, and mentioned that "Two neighbouring counties are in the process of switching their systems, because they have noted Haliburton's success."

Minor injuries in single auto mishap

Pamela Roberts, 26, of Haliburton suffered minor injuries when she lost control of her 1978 car and crashed into the ditch March 28.

Roberts was travelling north on Highway 519, when her car left the road and struck a rock on the east side of the road.

The automobile sustained $2500 damage.

Investigating officer was Constable Jim Solway.

$5,000 damage

Dawsey Haywood, 17, of Gooderham rolled his 1969 car into the ditch while southbound on County Road 3.

Haywood lost control of the vehicle which then coasted into the ditch and rolled over.

$5,000 damage was caused to the automobile.

The investigating officer was Constable Garry Chapman.

Fails to report

Earle Bull, 23, of Haliburton has been charged with failure to report collision forthwith on March 30.

Bull's 1976 car sustained $1500 damage after it left Harburn Road in Haliburton and crashed into a rock in the ditch.

OPP Constable Reg Eveligh investigated the incident.

Busy day at maple sugar bush

Close to 200 people were on hand for the annual Leslie M. Frost Natural Resources Centre maple syrup and information day Saturday. The highlight of the day was a visit to a working sugar bush and chance to taste the freshly made maple syrup. Some of the impressions of the day include, to the far left, syrup boiling the old fashion way, a more modern boiler at the immediate left, and an artist's (Fred Collins of Toronto) water colour of the sugar shack.

Board requests change in sign regulations

The Haliburton County Real Estate Board would like to see an easing of sign restrictions within the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden. The request from the board, which represents most real estate companies in Haliburton County, was tabled at the March 26 meeting of the council.

The board expressed concern that restrictions on signs which indicate a business operating in an area zoned other than commercial, may be too strict. The board said that it was taking the stand for all businesses which are permitted to operate in residential areas, such as hair dressers or insurance agents, as well as for real estate agents.

The Minden restrictions state that a sign for such businesses must not be larger than two square feet and that it must be attached to the front of the house.

The comment from the board noted that the size restriction is too small. They suggested a 16 square foot limit on signs. It was also pointed out that many businesses, particularly those operating in the rural areas, may be far from the road and so a sign attached to the front of the building would be virtually useless even if the view from the road was unobstructed. The board suggested that signs be permitted closer to the edge of the property, adjacent to the road.

Reeve Sinclair Nesbitt commented that the 16 square foot size suggested by the real estate board was too big. "There is a problem here," he commented, "but 16 square feet is just too big. We had to find something in between." He suggested that the size of the signs now in use to indicate properties for sale would be appropriate.

Dorset school gets one more year

The elementary school in Dorset has received a one year reprieve from the Haliburton County Board of Education.

The board recently held meetings in the community to discuss the possibility of closing the facility. Declining enrollment at the school, there are now 51 students there, is blamed for the proposed closure. A meeting held in Dorset last month drew a packed house of parents, all of whom expressed their desire to see the school remain open.

The board has been studying the situation at the Dorset school since October. If the facility is closed the students will likely be taken by bus to a school in Dwight, 13 miles north of Dorset.

Director of education Douglas Hodgson said the decision to allow the school to remain open will be reviewed by the board in the fall of this year. He indicated that unless there is a change in population patterns in the area it is likely the facility will have to be closed for the 1981-82 school term.

particularly if the business people were allowed to place them closer to the edge of their property.

The 16 square foot suggestion also drew flack from Councillor Stu Brandon. "What if we have a few tradesmen locate in the new subdivision?" he commented. "16 square foot signs would not look very appealing in that instance."

Jackson foursome take closing 'spiel

The Jack Jackson rink has captured top honours in the Minden Curling Club's Straw and Stone Bonspiel. This event, sponsored by Hiram Walker of Canada, was held this past weekend.

Twelve rinks were involved in the three day event which began Friday evening. The bonspiel is the last major curling competition of the season for the local club, and according to spokesmen for the event, it proved to be a fitting close to another successful season. (The league play-offs are scheduled to be completed this week.)

□ Bert Short, Minden

Other rinks in the order of their finish included: second, Bob Austin, Dale Austin,

He said that if the business people needed signs that large they should locate in the commercial district where larger signs are permitted.

The council appears to be in general agreement that some changes are needed to the sign restriction, however the matter was left and will be brought up for discussion at the next municipal meeting.

Gareth Kellett and Catherine Kellett; third, Alex Millar, Bev Millar, Paul Prentice and Patti Prentice; fourth, Bill Obee, Penny Obee, Neil Hodgson and Pam Hodgson; fifth, Ron Reid, Toos Reid, Wally Simons, and Yoland McCormick.

The Godfrey Saunders rink took the consolation award with members Marie Saunders, Gary and Marion Anderson receiving curler's crying towels and other prizes to ease their no-win record.

As the curling season draws to a close this week the fund raising efforts of the club for their new building is just getting underway. The first in a series of twelve share-the-wealth draws was held Monday evening with Bob Mann being named the winner of $450. A fund raising committee, headed by Bob Austin, has also been formed.

Council briefs

Items from the March 26 meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden Township council meeting.

The council approved the opening of a propane refilling station at the Woodcutter Supply location on Highway 121 near Ingoldsby. The station will be operated by the owners, set back 300 feet from the road and will be serviced by Canadian Propane of Peterborough.

Objection

The council has added its voice to the list of municipalities which are objecting to the use of 1975 property values in determining assessment for the area. The township has agreed to the equalization plan proposed by the Ministry of Revenue provided that 1978 property assessments are used as a base. The ministry recently announced 1975 figures would be used.

The Township of Lutterworth recently voiced their objection to the change as well.

The Minden resolution states that the township will not go along with the plan unless the 1978 figures are used.

New business

The council approved the opening of a convenience store in the community, this one to be located in the Minden Country Mall. The owner of the business, Marilyn Meldrum, will be required to pay a $150 transient traders licence fee during her first year of operation since she is not a resident of the municipality.

Port Hope takes tyke tournament

The Minden Tykes had a busy weekend, as they participated in two tournaments.

On Saturday, March 29, Minden hosted a Tyke tournament, then the team travelled to Haliburton on Sunday for the Glen Dart Memorial Tournament.

Minden didn't perform to their ability on Saturday and therefore were defeated in both of their games.

In the qualification round Minden was defeated in a close contest 3-2. Then, the Minden club was defeated 3-0 at the hands of Bracebridge in the consolation final.

Minden received a "by" to the consolation final as the eighth team in the tournament, Baysville, failed to attend.

Aaron Hie netted Minden's two goals in their loss to Huntsville.

Port Hope not only were the champions, but dominated the play and the scoring in each game they participated.

In their opening game Port Hope walked all over Haliburton for a 14-0 victory, then defeated Baltimore 3-0 in their closest game, before trouncing Huntsville 8-0 in the championship final game.

Bracebridge captured the consolation final by downing Haliburton 4-0, and Minden 3-0.

Port Hope took home the Pritchard's Electric trophy, donated by Doug Pritchard.

The championship runners-up, Huntsville, were awarded silver 50¢ pieces, donated by Minden coach Carl Hie, the Hockey Memories Book and tournament pins.

Bracebridge, the consolation champions won the Austin's Esso trophy.

Minden, the consolation runners-up, were presented silver 50¢ pieces, donated by Carl Hie, the Hockey Memories Book and tournament pins.

Individual award winners were Huntsville's Pat Rinaldis, for best goaltender, and Port Hope's Greg Hodges for most valuable player.

Rinaldis stopped six break-aways in the final game against Port Hope, and kicked out close to fifty shots, to keep the score within reason.

Greg Hodges scored four goals in the championship final game to lead Port Hope to the championship.

Car stolen

A 1979 Chevrolet pick-up truck and two sets of licence plates were taken from Curry Motors of Haliburton late in the evening on March 24.

The unknown person, or persons, broke a window to gain entrance into the business, then proceeded to help themselves to the merchandise.

The truck was found abandoned on March 26 near Oshawa.

OPP Constable Mike Maher investigated the theft.

Want Premier to honour pledge

Minden council has endorsed a resolution calling on Ontario Premier William Davis to honour his pledge to reduce property taxes for senior citizens.

The resolution is being circulated to all municipalities in the province by the Toronto borough of North York. The resolution points out that during the past provincial election Davis circulated a charter which outlined a number of campaign promises. Among the points was an undertaking to reduce property taxes for senior citizens up to 50% in a three year period following the election. As pointed out in the North York resolution, there are just three months left to run in that promise and the Ontario government is still far from reaching that goal.

Councillor Stuart Brandon, after hearing the resolution, wondered who would be responsible for the "picking up the slack" when the seniors receive the tax break.

It was also suggested that some sort of means test be implemented before any tax cuts are introduced. One councillor noted, "E.P. Taylor is a senior citizen too." Councillor Len Lonsberry suggested that the senior citizens should pay a reduced amount of education tax.

The council's endorsement of the resolution called for the Premier to honour his pledge, but not to reduce the property taxes by any more than 50%.

Test report

The Ministry of the Environment routinely issues updated reports on lake testing throughout the province. The lakes are tested for a variety of contaminants, some are chemical and others are from natural sources.

The March bulletin contains a report on one Haliburton County lake. The results are listed below.

Oxtongue Lake in McClintock Township: lake trout, tested for mercury, PCBs, Mirex and pesticides: up to 14 inches no restrictions; 14 and 26 inch, some restrictions; fish over 26 inches should not be consumed.

Oxtongue Lake: small-mouth bass, tested for mercury: up to 10 inches, no restrictions; 10 to 14 inches, some restrictions; over 14 inches the fish should not be eaten.

For clarification of this report or for more information on lakes throughout Ontario which have been tested, contact the Minden office of the Ministry of Natural Resources.

This week's Green Thumb Corner heads underground to explore some of the mysteries of plants that thrive beneath the soil.

And, if you're looking for something unique to set your garden apart from all the others in the neighbourhood, J.W. Tanner and R.C. Roy, both of the department of crop science at the University of Guelph, provide guidelines on what is needed to grow peanuts.

Garden nuts

If you are looking for something new for your 1980 garden, try growing peanuts. They can be grown successfully in most parts of southern Ontario, but the shorter the growing season, the smaller the yield.

You can grow peanuts on most fertile, well-drained soils. However, they grow best on sandy to sandy-loam soils. When grown in heavy soils, plants have trouble breaking through the soil, and you have trouble harvesting the pods.

Although there are four main types of peanuts, only two are recommended for Ontario conditions. These are the Spanish types, the small red-skinned nuts preferred for peanut butter; and the Valencia types, which have three to five peanuts per pod and are usually roasted for sale in the shell. Valencias mature a little earlier than Spanish varieties, so they are usually more productive in Ontario. Virginia and Runner, the two remaining types, can not be grown in Ontario because they require a long growing season.

Seed houses often sell peanuts in the shell for planting. The whole pod can be planted directly into the soil, but planting the actual seed is usually a more reliable method. When shelling the peanuts for seed, be careful not to tear the skin around the nut. Damaged skin increases the chances of disease, and reduces the chances of sprouting.

Plant peanuts in early May, but not before you usually plant peas because they are not as cold hardy. Peanuts can be planted before beans, however, as they are more frost tolerant.

Allow at least 50 centimetres (20 inches) between each row. Seeds should be spaced 10 to 12 centimetres apart (4 to 5 seeds per foot) along the rows. Plant seeds 3 to 5 centimetres - 1 1/2 to 2 inches deep.

By mid-June, the plants produce yellow flowers. These flowers open in the morning and wither at night; the next day, new flowers appear. Flowers are self-fertilizing, so they do not require bees for fruit set.

A few days after the flowers appear, the flower stalk begins to grow downwards. This stalk, called a peg, penetrates the soil surface and pushes down 5 to 8 centimetres (2 to 3 inches) into the soil. The tip of the peg, enlarges and develops into the peanut pod. In 40 to 50 days, the pod will contain mature peanuts.

Although peanut plants are fairly drought resistant, they should be watered during late June and July if the weather is dry.

Plants continue to produce flowers and pegs all season. By mid-September the plant will carry new flowers, new pegs, immature and mature peanuts. The longer the growing season, the greater the number of peanuts on each plant.

The plants should be allowed to develop and mature until harvest in late September or after a heavy frost. If the soil is loose and moist, the peanut plant can be pulled. To make harvesting easier, lift the soil lightly with a fork before pulling. Another method is to cut the tap root about 10 centimetres (4 inches) below the soil surface with a hoe, and then pull the plant gently out of the soil.

Mature pods have a textured appearance: immature pods are smooth. The inside of a mature pod is grey-black, and the peanuts should be reddish skinned.

If the weather is warm and sunny, leave the peanuts in the sun so the soil on the shell can be shaken off easily. Hang the plants in a warm, dry place until the pods are brittle dry. When dry, remove the pods from the plant. Peanuts in the shell can be stored in a dry place indefinitely.

Do not store or dry peanuts under conditions which promote mold growth. Never eat moldy peanuts as they may contain toxic substances.

Prepare your homegrown peanuts for eating using one of the following methods:

Peanuts in the shell - Place peanuts on a cookie sheet, one layer deep. Bake in a 180 C (350 F) oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Allow to cool, shell, and salt to taste.

Shelled peanuts - Remove the shells and place peanuts, one layer deep, on a well-greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 180 C (350 F) oven for 15 to 18 minutes. Remove, cool, and salt to taste.

Deep-fried, shelled peanuts - Heat cooking oil to 150 C (300 F). Place shelled peanuts in a wire basket and fully immerse peanuts in the oil. Cook for 10 minutes or until peanuts begin to brown. Remove from oil, drain, cool, and salt to taste.

AROUND THE TOWN

by Jeanne Sears

We took a walk Sunday afternoon up to the Recreation Centre for the Figure Skating presentation of Dancing through the Years. The setting was great and the crowd appreciative of the efforts of the Club from the tiny ones to the seniors. Everyone did their best and at the finale Werna Blakey presented the teacher with a lovely bouquet of flowers. We must not forget to mention the adults skating during intermission and comic "Clowning Around". An excellent show and we wonder at the long hours spent preparing for this.

Sincere sympathy of the community goes to the families and friends of these people who died since last week. Pearl Elstone,

Elizabeth Smethurst, Alice Davis, Clayton McKay and Lenard Elison (Haliburton)

Several ladies at Hyland Crest Home are having birthdays this month - included are Zilpah Hie, April 6, Ann Fountain, April 21 and Margaret Austin, April 27; if you are visiting there say hello to them or send a card or give them a phone call.

For each valley there's a hilltop

Foreach raindrop there is sun
For each twilight there's a dawning
When dark hours of night are done.

For each thistle there's a flower
For each tear there is a smile.
Your sorrow will give way to joy

In just a little while.

At the weekly Mini Card Party at the Parish Hall last Thursday afternoon winners were for cribbage Verna McDonald and Vera Ward; for euchre lone hands Pearl Cowen and Marg McAfee and Della Griffin. One of us had a birthday that day and all joined in singing greetings to him. No card party this week, but we'll see you there on the 10th.

During the intermission at the Skating Show Mrs. Gorrie and Mrs. Earl Hewitt drew for the winners for the new Library Art Fund, and these were of the afghan Verna McDonald holding ticket no. 602 and of the braided rug Marnie Robinson Sr. holding ticket no. 628.

Wedding bells were ringing on Saturday and good wishes go to Linda and John Pentney Jr., the newlyweds.

Weekend guest with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Angus Coulter was their son Gerald of Toronto.

Weekend guests with the Earl Birds were the Alan Brydsons of Bracebridge and Laura Bird of Toronto and Mike Bird of Peterborough. The whole group attended the wedding of Judy Bird and Mark Taylor at Haliburton on Saturday.

Mrs. Arnold Coulter and Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Barry spent last Thursday in Peterborough.

Bradley Robinson of London, Ontario was visiting his parents Mr. and Mrs. Phil Robinson for several days last week.

Mrs. Bill King is away at Barrie visiting her daughter and husband Mr. and Mrs. Andy England.

Have you a friend who's not so well
In hospital or home -
Someone who loves the sunshine, but
No longer far can roam?
Drop in to see them for a while,
And share the sunshine of your smile.

Only coming event is Library Art Group meeting Monday, April 14 at Municipal Hall at 8 p.m.

Spring must be here, a friend cut me some pussy willows, we saw our first robin, and a butterfly was fluttering around, now we can see the work to do in our back yard.

Hardly seems possible April is here
The Easter Bunny will be going around,
For all the little ones so dear
Hope the eggs he hides really abound.
Mummy will be showing her brand new hat
Wonder what others will think of that!
Dad will try napping amid the noise

Did you ever hear of really quiet boys?
The season is right, and weather hopefully fair,
April is swinging her wand everywhere.

Don't forget the dance at the Minden Arena on Saturday, April 5 sponsored by Minden Minor Hockey. Tickets are $10 per couple and the music is by Ed Whiteway. A buffet will be served at midnight.

On Sunday, the Minden Figure Skating Club presented their ice show entitled "Dancing Through The Years". I thoroughly enjoyed this show and would congratulate the skaters for a job well done. Congratulations also to the parents of these girls for the eye-catching costumes worn by the skaters.

Saturday morning I went down to Minden to pay my taxes, only to find the municipal office closed. I work outside of the village of Minden, therefore I can't get to the office from 9-12 and 1-5. The office is open Saturday mornings in the summer time, is this for the convenience of summer people? What would be the cost of putting a mail slot in the door for the convenience of those residents of the townships who do not live and work in the village?

Sincere sympathy of this community is extended to the family and friends of the late Lloyd Harrison of Toronto who passed away Monday.

SENIOR LEAGUE

by Linda English

Tuesday morning Reverend Smith of Haliburton Lakeside Baptist Church held the service in the Chapel. Agnes Taylor played the organ for the hymns.

We viewed two very interesting movies after lunch. The first, called "Sea Borne" was filmed in Newfoundland. It showed how the shipping industry is the livelihood of the people there. The most modern ships in the world are made at Port Sydney. According to the movie life is improving for the residents of this province thanks to Canadian National Marine Services.

The second film was entitled "Quilts". It was all about a competition sponsored by Canada Packers. We saw the many designs and colour combinations of the different quilts and were amazed at the workmanship involved in handcrafting a quilt. It was interesting to note that Mrs. Margaret Carr from Bobcaygeon won the honour of the best quilt on display.

Wednesday we had quite a good number turn out to fun and fitness. Jessie Walter was the winner at roll the ball. This was a first for Jessie. We also had Carrie Drysdale and Geraldine McNeil join in the fun.

Thursday we also had a good time when Fern Donnelly joined us. We always look forward to having Fern join us every Thursday morning for fun and fitness.

The Anglican Church Women of Maple Lake made the birthday tea party a very special event. They served a delicious variety of goodies and sandwiches and presented the guest of honour with a lovely decorated birthday cake. Our special birthday people this month were Irene Burns, Violet Young, Pearl Bowron, Catherine Teasdale, Alfred Richardson, Bruce Simms, Ralph Daniel and Hugh Kernohan.

Friday was a day to remember. Joe Nicholson brought his equipment, and sang many old songs that our residents remembered well. In the last half of his program he did his "crazy" act. He had us almost rolling on the floor in laughter, especially when he sang about Blue Eyes. The residents said they laughed until they cried, and were holding their sides when they left the auditorium. Thank you so much Joe for taking time from your busy schedule to entertain us, and we'll be waiting with great anticipation for your next visit.

Farm news & views

Several new "tools" for beef producers were discussed at meetings in the area last week.

Over 50 cattlemen from Peterborough and Victoria Counties attended the beef bull day program held at Wib Donaldson and Larry Leahy's farms. One of the new ideas discussed that day was scrotal circumference. The scrotal circumference of a bull has been found to be an indication of his breeding ability.

The minimum circumference suggested for a year-old bull is 30 centimetres. This minimum increases to 32 cm. for a bull 24 months old, and 33 cm. for a bull over 30 months of age.

Since about one out of every five beef bulls in infertile, this scrotal measurement could be an aid in identifying some of these bulls earlier.

A frame score for beef cattle was discussed at both the bull day and at the United Breeders information meeting. This score is a measure of the height of an animal, related to its age. The height is measured at either the shoulder or hip.

The average frame score for British breeds is 3. This gives a height of 43 inches at 12 months of age, increasing to 46 inches at 18 months, and 47.5 inches at 24 months.

Animals of a continental breed have an average frame score of 5. Their height would be 47 inches at 12 months, 50 inches at 18 months, and just over 51 inches by 24 months of age.

When cattle reach 24 months of age, they have essentially stopped growing taller.

By knowing the average frame score of your herd of beef cows, you can then select a bull with a frame score which is one or two points at most, higher. This will improve the height of your calf crop, but not run the risk of having serious calving difficulties.

The use of prostaglandin for synchronized breeding, was another tool for the beef producer, discussed at the United Breeder's meeting. Prostaglandin is the natural hormone which cows secrete to cause ovulation. By injecting a small amount of the hormone into a cow, you can "short circuit" her natural cycle and bring her into heat.

This treatment of a number of beef cows, will bring them to breeding at the same time. This then makes it easy to breed these cows using artificial insemination.

The major drawback for using artificial insemination in beef herds has been heat detection. The development of prostaglandin has helped overcome this problem. With the high cost of keeping their own bull today, many beef producers are seriously considering using this new tool.

Dr. Bennett appointed

The Ontario Ministry of Agriculture & Food has announced that Dr. Peter Bennett of R.R. 2 Minden has been appointed as the assisted Large-animal Veterinarian for Haliburton County. The appointment was recommended by the Haliburton County Veterinary Services Committee recently. Dr. Bennett will assume his new responsibilities on April 1.

This assisted veterinary program is made possible by the financial participation of a number of livestock owners in Haliburton County. Any livestock owner wishing to participate in and benefit from the program should contact a member of the Veterinary Services Committee or the Lindsay Agricultural Office.

Events this week

April 4 & 5: Noon - 10:00 p.m. - Farm, Home and Garden Show, Wilberforce Arena.

April 10: 7:30 p.m. - Haliburton County Farmers Assoc. monthly meeting at Lakeview School, Haliburton

April 11: 7:00 p.m. - Kinmount Agricultural Society Annual Banquet, at Kinmount Community Centre.
